How to use this workbook

What is in this book

This workbook has 103 kanji commonly studied at JLPT N5 level. JLPT has no official kanji list, so this is our own selection of everyday kanji that beginner textbooks teach first. Each kanji has half a page.

How to read a kanji block

- Big box: the model character. Copy its shape and balance.
- Meaning: the core English meaning.
- ON: the on reading (from Chinese), written in katakana. KUN: the kun reading (native Japanese), written in hiragana. Kana in brackets are okurigana — the kana written after the kanji, as in まな(ぶ). Romaji is shown next to each reading.
- Example words: common words with this kanji, their reading and meaning.
- Practice boxes: trace the light grey characters first, then write on your own in the empty boxes. The dashed lines help you place each part of the character.

Study tips

- Say the reading out loud while you write.
- After every 10 kanji there is a short review quiz. Try it without looking, then check the answers at the back.
- Print the pages you need as many times as you like for your own study.

About the readings and stroke order

Readings come from the Jōyō Kanji Table, the official list published by the Government of Japan. Rare readings marked as special in that table are not shown. Stroke order and stroke counts are not printed in this book; please check them in your textbook or with your teacher. The model characters use a textbook-style typeface; small details can look different in other fonts or in handwriting.
